Nussbaum Transportation Announces 6% Pay Increase for 2015

Company's OTR drivers to reach $70,000 annually

HUDSON, ILLINOIS – Nussbaum Transportation has announced a six percent pay increase for over-the-road (OTR) drivers beginning in January 2015.

Nussbaum's pay now will range from $.42 to $.52 per mile based on length of haul, with a weekly minimum pay guarantee of $1,050.

These increases, along with Nussbaum's lucrative performance-based bonus pay program, will result in average annual driver earnings greater than $63,000 and will enable top drivers to achieve $70,000 and more per year.

"Our company is committed to improving wages to retain quality drivers and attract new people to this industry," noted CEO Brent Nussbaum. "At a time of economic improvement in the U.S., with an abundance of available non-driving jobs, pay plays an important role in keeping drivers on the road."
